

WINNIE Vague

MOMENT OF THE WEEK (...from what he can remember)

SO all eyes are on the big occasion and the hundreds of bigwigs turning up either for one last farewell or to make sure she really has gone and then what happens? This babe steals the show. Dunno who she is but she must be important cos she got to do one of the thingies. Then Twitter goes mad and she's nudged old Pippa Mids into the inside pages of the papers. I can gather she's got an "Iron" and she's someone's "grand-daughter" but that doesn't really narrow it down. Doesn't every woman have an iron?

TWO-1 TERRY'S PREM PREDICTION OF THE WEEK

THERE are some seriously tasty fixtures this weekend, with the Premier League really starting to heat up! I've decided to turn my expert eye to Sunday's clash between Liverpool and Chelsea. Benitez returns to his old club looking to exorcise the pain of last week's FA Cup exit. But, with Rodger's Reds desperately chasing a European finish AND being the home team, I going with...

It's gotta be 2-1

LIVERPOOL 2 CHELSEA 1

DID TERRY GET IT RIGHT FOR YOU?

YOU were bang off the money last week, you greasy turd. I should've known the Gunners were gonna put more than a measly two past the Canary's with the luck they've been having lately! Speaking of money - you cost me another crisp fifty with your uninformed, bell-end brain prediction. Eat sh*t and die! - Bridgette, Woking

WINNIE WAS ON ABOUT... Maggie Thatcher's grand-daughter Amanda, who was the focus of media attention when she attended her famous relative's funeral on Wednesday. With some papers dubbing her the "Iron Grand-daughter".

NOW WE'RE NO1 FOR ANGLING!

By NEIL GOODWIN
neil@sundaysport.co.uk

EXTREME angler Bob Roberts has braved hippos, crocs and killer snakes in his search for the world's most exotic fish.

And now the 62-year-old really is taking his life into his own hands - by joining the Weekend Sport as our resident fishing expert!

Bob has been getting his tackle wet since he was 16, and after working on Coarse Angler mag, and then editing best-selling Advanced Carp Fishing, he went on to win the UK Masters angling championships in 1997 in front of a live Sky TV audience.

Then, 10 years ago, and following the death of his wife, Bob decided to retire from his job as a civil engineer and focus on fishing full time - embarking on the sort of foreign adventures to give you a right old stiff pole.

Now the Doncaster-born sportsman will be offering Sport readers weekly hints and tips, while also documenting the UK's greatest angling venues.

We caught up with the legend, as we prepare to launch his new column next week...

DREAM FISHING?

I've fished in the Himalayas and on the Ganges, I've been in pristine jungles and I've braved gun-toting soldiers in Uganda and Zambia.

After whitewater rafting into a fishing area in India, I came out of my tent to see a leopard print in the sand. That was pretty special.

I love to fish wild waters but you can't beat fishing in Britain. Our country has so much to offer.

MOST EXOTIC FISH?

The most difficult challenge was catching Golden Mahseer on the Sarayu River in the north of India.

They are so rare now. You can spend days catching bugger all, and then all of a sudden you'll hook a monster. I had one that weighed 42lbs.

They're so powerful and wild - the fight is incredible. They're like racing machines.

I also caught a 400lb sturgeon in Canada that had a girth of 44 inches. It was 10ft long and towed us for a mile and a half.

MOST DANGEROUS LOCATION?

Uganda, definitely. We were at the bottom of the Murchison

ROD LEGEND BOB ROBERTS JOINS WEEKEND Sport!

It's the catch of the year!

Falls - a 600ft waterfall - and surrounded by armed guards. As well as man-eating hippos and crocodiles!

I caught a 114lb Nile perch and was terrified it was going to pull me in. One slip and you're food for the crocodiles!

WORST INJURY?

I had to get a mate to pull a Size 4 hook out of my thumb in Canada. It was buried inside - right down to the shank.

I didn't want to go to hospital and ruin the trip so my mate got a pair of pliers and ripped it straight out. I wrapped it up in electrical tape and carried on fishing.

FISH YOU'RE MOST PROUD OF?

A little perch. It was the first fish I ever caught.

Around 30 years later I found myself competing in the UK Masters and in the final stages I needed points.

I caught one little perch - it could have been the same perch I landed all those years ago.

And that one little fish won me the championship. Fishing is not just about the biggest fish, it's about the memorable ones.

WISH LIST?

I want to go to the Amazon and catch a peacock bass.

It's such a beautiful fish - and a real challenge.

DRAG DEALER!

By MARK LISTER
news@sundaysport.co.uk

A DRUG dealer was dressed in a fetching pink floral FROCK when he was nabbed flogging wraps of meow-meow, a court heard.

The goods spilled from sports coach Steven Ashton's matching rose-coloured handbag after he dropped it outside a busy nightclub.

Red-faced Ashton, 24, was on a cross-dressing themed night out with pals when he was spotted by cops, who ordered him to remove his flowery summer dress and black leggings for a strip search.

Hull Crown Court was told Ashton dropped his handbag outside the city's Revolution bar and police saw nine bags of M-Cat fall out on the pavement.

His defence said: "He had a humiliating arrest as he was wearing fancy dress and was strip-searched. He was given money for drinks by his friends to look after the drugs."

The court heard Ashton and his friends had bought a large amount of M-Cat to use as a recreational drug at the weekend.

The Recorder told him: "You said you and your friends had chipped in to pay for it and you kept it in this fancy dress handbag."

"You were bought drinks all evening for holding on to the drugs and the Crown accept that basis of plea."

Ashton pleaded guilty to possessing M-Cat with intent to supply on October 27 last year.

He was sentenced to a 12-month community order and 100 hours of unpaid work, and must also pay £1,200 in costs.
